business affairs here, expects to return to her new home, in New York, to-day. Mrs. Gottlieb will be remembered as the mother of the young lady from Richmond who was so shamefully deceived by George S. Maxweil last November. The story is a familiar one in Richmond, and the public knows how Miss Rosalie Gottlieb was made the victim of Maxwell, who married her when he had a wife and children living in Louisville.

Mrs. Gottlieb was called upon by many of her friends yesterday, and to them she explained herself as deeply grateful for the cordial treatment accorded her here. Her visit here, she said, was purely of a business nature, and she expects to return to New York to-day. Mrs. Gottlieb said that her daughter was just recovering from a long nervous attack, brought on by the shock produced when she realized that she had been cruelly treated by the man she supposed was her husband. She is now with her brother, Mr. Fred. Gottlieb, in New York.

When Kelly's liquor-license expired a short time ago he was denied a renewal of it by the County Court.
